

CERDI, FERDI and IDDRI, as part of the Initiative for Development and Global Governance (IDGM+), organize the conference

Developpement, climate, security: challenges for an new cooperation policy

MONDAY 15 JANUARY 2018 • 9:00 AM. TO 6:00 PM.

At the French Ministry for Europe and Foreign Affairs
27, rue de la Convention, Paris 15^e, France

🐦 #IDGM2018

In an increasingly interdependent world, socio-economic development and sustainable environmental management are two prerequisites for peace. This is the idea underpinning the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in September 2015. Addressing these challenges implies renewing cooperation policies by further integrating issues of development, social and environmental sustainability and security. In the short term, this agenda is marked by a number of key events. In France, the next Interministerial Committee for International Cooperation and Development will take place in February 2018. In Europe, the future of cooperation and development policies will be discussed in the context of the debate on the 2021-2027 Multiannual Financial Framework.

8:30 – 9:00: WELCOME COFFEE9:00 – 9:10: WELCOME

- Patrick Guillaumont, President, FERDI
- Teresa Ribera, Director, IDDDI
- Grégoire Rota Graziosi, Professor and Director, CERDI

9:10 – 9:30: OPENING OF THE CONFERENCE

- Emmanuel Puisais-Jauvin, Deputy Director-General for Globalization, Culture, Education and International Development, French Minister of Europe and Foreign Affairs

9:30 – 11:00: SESSION 1

Poverty, climate, insecurity: respective and combined impact on migration – What challenges for development policies?

The goal of this session is to take stock of the linkages between, on the one hand, poverty and inequalities, political or military conflicts and the impacts of climate change and, on the other hand, the different types of migration (international migration to Europe, but also intra-regional, intra-national and commuter migration, etc.).

This particularly implies clarifying the different types of migration, the various factors causing migration, and the linkages between migration and the development of home territories and of host territories and countries. The session could also be the opportunity to discuss the importance of distinguishing between forced migration and migration as an adaptation strategy in the face of political, climate or economic shocks. It could also be useful to examine the linkages between migration and the movement of innovations.

- Chair of the session: Teresa Ribera, Director, IDDDI
- Keynote: Frédéric Docquier, Professor, Catholic University of Louvain, and Senior Researcher, FERDI

PANELLISTS

- Louise Baker, Director of the Department of External Relations, Policy and Advocacy (ERPA), United Nations Convention to Combat Desertification (UNCCD)
- Simone Bertoli, Professor, CERDI
- Youba Sokona, Special Advisor for Sustainable Development, South Centre, and Vice-Chair, Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC)

11:00 – 11:15: BREAK

11:15 – 12:45: SESSION 2

Do security and environmental risks challenge the analysis and design of development projects?

The aim of this session is to discuss the impact of risks connected to security and political or military conflicts, but also to climate change (including for the sharing of natural resources) on the identification, design and implementation of development projects. In addition to addressing these risks in terms of project evaluation, the session aims to clarify how development interventions (at the project or policy level) can help to reduce these risks. The linkages between humanitarian approaches, military approaches and development approaches could be discussed during this session.

- Chair of the session: Grégoire Rota Graziosi, Professor and Director, CERDI
- Keynote: Dominic Rohner, Professor of Economics, University of Lausanne, Researcher, Center for Economic Policy Research

PANELLISTS

- Inger Andersen, Director General, International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN) and former Vice President, World Bank
- Rabah Arezki, Chief Economist for Middle and North Africa, World Bank
- Charles Tellier, Responsible for the Crisis and Conflict Unit, French Development Agency (AFD)
- Bernard Ziller, Senior Economic Advisor, European Investment Bank (EIB)

12:45 – 2:00 PM: LUNCH (BUFFET)

2:00 – 3:30: SESSION 3

Financing for development, security and climate: respective shares, synergies, competition or complementarity?

This session aims to identify the inevitable trade-offs between financing for development, for security and for climate mitigation. It will be the opportunity to discuss choices concerning the allocation or targeting of public and private financing towards the countries and territories that need it the most, when they are also the areas of highest risk. The session could also focus on the distribution of public financing between different types of instruments, depending on the bilateral or multilateral financing institutions.

- Chair of the session: Patrick Guillaumont, President, FERDI
- Keynote: Barbara Buchner, Executive Director, Climate Finance program, Climate Policy Initiative

PANELLISTS

- Ingrid Holmes, Director, E3G
- Alain de Janvy, Professor, University of California Berkeley, and Senior Fellow Ferdi
- Sylvie Lemmet, Chief Counsellor, Cour des Comptes (French Court of Audit)
- Cyrille Pierre, Sustainable Development Director, French Ministry for Europe and Foreign Affairs

3:30 – 3:45: BREAK

3:45 – 5:15: SESSION 4

Governance at the core of development interventions, conflict management and climate action, seen as the construction of a common good

The goal of this session is to stress the importance of governance as a major issue in dealing with political conflicts and reducing security and environmental risks (through better management as a common good). This session could focus on the challenges of building international governance institutions (at the global level, as with the climate, or at the regional level, as with the joint management of shared water resources), or of national or local governance. It could also be the opportunity to discuss the instruments for development action the most conducive to improving governance.

- Chair of the session: Jean-Michel Sévérino, Chief Executive Officer, Investisseurs & Partenaires (I&P)
- Keynote: Gaël Giraud, Chief Economist, Executive Director of the Innovation, Research and Knowledge Division, French Development Agency (AFD)

PANELLISTS

- Pascal Delisle, Climate Change Advisor, European External Action Service (EEAS), European Union
- Martial Foucault, Professor, Sciences Po, and Director, CEVIPOF
- Inge Kaul, Assistant Professor, Hertie School of Governance, Berlin, Germany

5:15 – 5:30: BREAK

5:30 – 6:30: FINAL ROUND TABLE

What international development policy to address the threefold challenge of poverty, climate and insecurity?

- Facilitator: Tertius Zongo, High-Level Advisor on the Sahel Region, African Development Bank, and former Prime Minister of Burkina Faso

PANEL

- Luc du Perron de Revel, Major General, French Army, Former Commander of the Adapted Military Service (ADM)
- Jean-Marie Guehenno, Former Chief Executive Officer, International Crisis Group, former Under-Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations, United Nations
- Mario Pezzini, Director, Development Center, OECD
- Rémy Rioux, Director General, French Development Agency (AFD)
- Luis Tejada Chacon, Director, Spanish Cooperation Agency for International Development (AECID) – Agencia Española de Cooperación Internacional para el Desarrollo (AECID)
- Ginette Ursule Yoman, Former Secretary of State for Governance and Capacity Building, Côte d'Ivoire

6:30: CLOSING

Developpement, climate, security: challenges for an new cooperation policy

The Initiative for Development and Global Governance (IDGM) aims to foster the emergence of a French and Francophone capacity, within a European framework, to generate ideas and to influence the international debate in the field of international development. This initiative, which gathers IDDRI and FERDI, benefits from public support through the Agence française de développement (AFD).

The IDGM+ project “Designing new international development policies based on research results. Strengthening the Initiative for Development and Global Governance” is an extension of the IDGM initiative and also gathers CERDI (a mixed research unit associated with CNRS and part of Clermont-Auvergne University). The IDGM+ project was selected in 2011 as part of the « Investissements d’Avenir » program for excellence research centers (Labex). It gathers a network of 270 researchers.

Learn more: www.idgm.org

This conference receives financial support from the Agence Nationale de la Recherche of the French government through the Investissements d’avenir [ANR-10-LABX-14-01] programme