

BLOG POST January 19th 2023

Germany and France must coordinate better

Picture credit : Institut Français

Authors

Sébastien Treyer

Executive Director

Nicolas Berghmans

Director, New industrial policies programme

 Reading time: 1 min

The Élysée Treaty was signed 60 years ago. Today, Germany and France are strong partners in Europe. But if they don't work more closely together on climate and energy policy, it will jeopardize the EU's cohesion, write Sébastien Treyer and Nicolas Berghmans of the Paris-based think tank IDDRI

Read more on the website of Table Europe

PACTE VERT EUROPÉEN

CLIMATE

FRANCE

ALLEMAGNE

EUROPE