

BLOG POST September 28th 2023

Towards a 21st Century Social Contract

Authors

Mathieu Saujot

Director, Lifestyles in transition

Clémence Nasr

Former Research Fellow, Lifestyles in Transition

Marion Bet

Research Fellow, Lifestyles in Transition

Saamah Abdallah

Program lead Sustainable Wellbeing, Hot or Cool

Magnus Bengtsson

Policy director, Hot or Cool

Lewis Akenji

Managing director, Hot or Cool

🕒 Reading time: 1 min

This project is being carried out with contributions from F-X. Demoures (Grand Récit), L. Francou (Parlons Climat), S. Dubuisson-Quellier (CNRS- SciencesPo), M. Fleurbaey (Paris School of Economics), C. Lejeune (SciencesPo), J. Ferrando (Missions Publiques), L. Chancel (SciencesPo - PSE), S. Thiriot (Ademe)

The ecological transition cannot take place without changing lifestyles, which implies profound changes in the main sectors (food, mobility, etc.) and in society as a whole. Understanding how to implement these changes means overcoming the silos that prevent us from understanding what is blocking and finding solutions at the political, economic and social frontiers. In this context, IDDRI's Lifestyles in Transition programme, in collaboration with the HotorCool institute, is launching a new project mobilising the concept of the social contract to make progress in this direction.

Read more on Hot or Cool Institute website

MODES DE VIE

SUFFICIENCY

INÉÉGALITÉS

CONTRAT SOCIAL